FROM THE PRESIDENT'S DESK:

Greetings Compatriots,

It's Springtime in Texas and that means lots of wildflowers, especially bluebonnets and Indian paintbrushes, and the greening of trees, shrubs, and lawns. It's such a wonderful time of year! Get out and enjoy our beautiful Texas! But, it also means an increased threat of severe storms and tornados. I pray that all of us stay safe during any weather events.

Another busy month with several Color Guard events both in-person and via Zoom, lots of committee meetings via Zoom, our Texas Society State Convention via Zoom, and in-person award presentations to three MedStar First Responders who all were involved in the mass casualty event in February on I-35W.

We are meeting in person this month at Bacon's Bistro & Café located on Highway 26 in Hurst. We plan to meet at this location for at least the months of April and May. Please plan to join us! The Chapter Board of Managers will make decisions on a meeting location beginning in June. Rumor has it that Woodhaven Country Club has begun repairs and hope to be back in business sometime in May. We shall see.

The Board of Managers is also working on plans to encourage participation in Chapter events, as well as participation on committees and officer positions. We need men to lead committees. This is also an election year. We will elect a new set of officers in November who will guide the Chapter for the following two years.

When I was at university, I belonged to Alpha Phi Omega Service Fraternity. Since it's founding in 1925, it's principles have always been "Leadership, Friendship, & Service." These qualities apply to us as SAR members so very well.

There is a need for men to step up and take leadership roles to ensure the continued success of chapter activities and accomplishments. So, please be thinking about how best you can find your place of service in the Chapter. Be ready to say YES!

In brotherly affection,

Ron

MEMBERSHIP HONOR ROLL

Membership in the SAR is valued by almost all men who seek membership. That is no exception to those of us in the Maj. K.M. Van Zandt Chapter. A survey of membership dates finds that we have a number of members who have consistently renewed their membership for a number of years. Let's see just how many have at least 20 years of membership sometime during this year of 2021.

- 49 Allan V. Gillmore
- 46 Kenneth R. Cox
- 39 James R. Herman III, Jerry D. Minton
- 38 Floyd M. Cox
- 35 David P. Brown
- 34 Walter S. Manning, Jr.
- 33 Walter F. Bowie
- 29 David R. Martin
- 27 Roger D. Cox, Cable G. Johnson
- 25 Charles P. Fogerson
- 24 Jeffrey D. Pray, Terry D. Davison
- 23 Raymond L. Leftwich, Matthew M. Truitt, Ralph E. Smith
- 22 Andrew Todd Hebert, Gerald A. Gieger, Charles L. Fogerson
- 21 James E. Alderman, Robert J. Devine

Thank you, Compatriots, for your many years of dedicated service to the Sons of the American Revolution.

And, CONGRATULATIONS !!!!!

126TH ANNUAL CONVENTION OF TEXAS SOCIETY SAR

April 16 at 7:00 p.m.

April 17 at 8:00 a.m.

ZOOM MEETING

You must be registered to attend.

WOODHAVEN COUNTRY CLUB DAMAGED

Chapter meetings at Woodhaven Country Club are cancelled until further notice. President Turner found the following posted on the country club's website about a week prior to our March meeting:

The 2021 Texas Winter Storm caused severe damage to our water sprinkler fire protection system, leading to massive water damage to Woodhaven Country Club. Therefore, the club will be closed until further notice.

We did not receive any official notification of this situation and, therefore, it became necessary to convert the March meeting and possibly all future meetings (at least until further notice) to ZOOM, beginning at 9:00 a.m. I hope that you will join us in this virtual environment.

Also, due to the uncertainty of getting access to our flags that we store at the country club, Color Guard Commander Bobby Gresham cleaned out our locker and moved all our flags, poles, stands, etc. to his home. This will ensure we have access to these items on occasions when they are needed.

APRIL CHAPTER MEETING

APRIL 24, 2021

This year, the Texas Society State Convention on April 17th is the same date as our April Chapter Meeting. Due to the meeting conflict, our Chapter Meeting will move to Saturday, April 24th.

On April 24th, we will meet at

HALIFAX RESOLVES

The Halifax Resolves was a name later given to the resolution adopted by North Carolina on April 12, 1776. The adoption of the resolution was the first official action in the American Colonies calling for independence from Great Britain during the American Revolution. The Halifax Resolves helped pave the way for the presentation to Congress of the United States Declaration of Independence less than three months later.

The creation and ratification of the resolves was the result of a strong movement in the colonies advocating separation from Great Britain. These separatists, or "American Whigs" (later, "Patriots"), sought to mobilize public support for a much discussed and all encompassing declaration of independence. The primary impediment to an outright declaration of independence from Great Britain was that none of the delegates to the Second Continental Congress were authorized by their home governments to take any action that would lead to such a declaration. Advocates of independence therefore sought to revise the instructions to each congressional delegation and remove any restrictions regarding a declaration of independence.

The resolution of April 12, 1776, became known as the Halifax Resolves because the Fourth Provincial Congress of North Carolina (which adopted them) had met in the town of Halifax, North Carolina. The 83 delegates present unanimously adopted the resolves, which encouraged delegates to the Continental Congress from all the colonies to finally push for independence. The adoption of the Halifax Resolves was the first official action in the colonies calling for independence from Great Britain.

The North Carolinian flag commemorates the Halifax Resolves by bearing the date of its adoption: April 12, 1776.

The Halifax Resolves only empowered North Carolina's three delegates to the Second Continental Congress (Joseph Hewes, William Hooper, and John Penn) to join with those from other colonies to declare independence from Great Britain's rule.

With the passage of the resolves, North Carolina became the first colony to explicitly permit their delegates to vote in favor of independence. The Halifax Resolves, however, stopped short of instructing North Carolina's delegates to introduce a resolution of independence to Congress, a step which was taken by Virginia in June with the adoption of the Lee Resolution. The Second Continental Congress issued the United States Declaration of Independence the following month, in July.

Every year, on April 12, the Halifax Historic District, a historic site operated by the North Carolina Department of Cultural Resources, celebrates Halifax Day. Interpreters in period costumes provide guided tours of historic buildings, demonstrate historic crafts and teach about colonial activities. Occasionally, reenactors portray revolutionary-era soldiers and demonstrate the use of historic weapons during the Halifax Day events.

James Hill, Superintendent, Guilford Courthouse National Military Park, NPS, was the guest speaker.

BRIEF HISTORY OF GUILFORD COURTHOUSE AND THE COMMANDERS

On March 15, 1781, the largest, most hotly-contested battle of the Revolutionary War's Southern Campaign was fought at the small North Carolina back country hamlet of Guilford Courthouse. Major General Nathanael Greene, defending the ground at Guilford Courthouse with an army of almost 4,500 American militia and Continentals, was tactically defeated by a smaller British army of about 1,900 veteran regulars and German allies commanded by Lord Charles Cornwallis. After 2 1/2 hours of intense and often brutal fighting, Cornwallis forced his opponent to withdraw from the field. Greene's retreat preserved the strength of his army, but Cornwallis's frail victory was won at the cost of over 25% of his army. Guilford Courthouse proved to be the high water mark of British military operations in the Revolutionary War. Weakened in his campaign against Greene, Cornwallis abandoned the Carolinas hoping for success in Virginia. At Yorktown, seven months after his victory at Guilford Courthouse, Lord Cornwallis would surrender to the combined American and French forces under General George Washington.

NATHANAEL GREENE was born in Rhode Island in 1742 to Quaker parents. The religious sect discouraged formal education, but undeterred, young Greene educated himself, with much influence from Reverend Ezra Stiles, future Yale University President. Greene moved in 1770 to Coventry, RI to take charge of the family-owned foundry. He was the first to urge the establishment of a public school, and was chosen as a member of the Rhode Island General Assembly. In 1774, Greene began to take an interest in the growing discontent that led him to the military. Greene helped raise a company of militia called the "Kentish Guards." His abilities as a leader were quickly recognized. At the outbreak of the American Revolution, in May 1775, Greene was commissioned as a brigadier general of militia over three regiments raised in Rhode Island. The following June, Greene received his Continental commission and was promoted to major general. Greene fought in the battles of Fort Mifflin, Trenton, Brandywine, Germantown, earning him much respect among his fellow commanders, and the trust of General George Washington. In March 1778, he was appointed as Quartermaster General of the Continental Army, with the difficult responsibility of acquiring supplies for the army and organizing the army's camps. His efforts were instrumental during the winter 1779-1780 encampment in Morristown, New Jersey. Following the disastrous Battle of Camden, SC, in August 1780, Congress asked Washington to advise a replacement commander for the Southern Department.

Greene was recommended and appointed to command in October. Taking charge of the remnants of the Southern Army in December, Greene's conduct of the war in the South for the next three years was so successful that it broke the back of the British war effort in America. From the South Carolina Battle of the Cowpens, into North Carolina for a brilliant maneuver called the Race to the Dan, he finally drew the British forces into battle here at Guilford Courthouse. With the departure of Cornwallis' forces, Greene moved back into South Carolina to force the enemy's hand at Hobkirk's Hill, second Camden and Eutaw Springs, pushing them back into Charleston to ultimately end the Southern Campaign.

LORD CHARLES CORNWALLIS was born in 1738 into an old and distinguished English family. After being schooled at Eton, he entered the military school of Turin in Italy and was an Ensign at age 17. He was fairly quickly promoted to captain in the 85th Regiment of Foot. He made Lieutenant Colonel of the 12th Regiment of Foot. In 1762 he became the Second Earl Cornwallis following the death of his father. He was made a Colonel in the 33rd Regiment of Foot in 1766. In 1775, when war seemed inevitable in the American colonies, Lord Charles, Second Earl Cornwallis, became a Major General in the British Army.

Cornwallis accepted a command of troops in the colonies. Serving under Sir Henry Clinton, Cornwallis led British forces in the battle of Long Island in August 1776, routing Washington's army. Cornwallis's failure to defeat Washington in the battles of Princeton and Trenton in the winter of 1777 brought forth a reprimand from Clinton. But, in the fall of 1777, while under General William Howe, he fared better in the battles of Brandywine and Germantown.

In January 1778 he returned to England to accept a promotion to Lieutenant General. In April he sailed back to America to become second in command to Clinton, now Commander in Chief. Cornwallis led the British attack on Washington's line at the Battle of Monmouth, NJ. Here, his forces struck a hard blow against the command of Major General Nathanael Greene.

When the war shifted to the South, Cornwallis accompanied Clinton's army. After the fall of Charleston in May 1780, Clinton left Cornwallis to hold the city and restore crown authority to the South. British success at Camden and the establishment of bases throughout South Carolina led them to enter North Carolina in the fall of 1780. After British reversals at Kings Mountain and Cowpens, Cornwallis and his small British army was on the offensive in early 1781, chasing Nathanael Greene across North Carolina into Virginia. Exhausted and hungry after two months of chasing Greene, Cornwallis's army retired to Hillsborough, NC. On March 15 the two armies clashed at Guilford Courthouse. Cornwallis's smaller army suffered 27% casualties, but he managed to force the rebels from the field. Unwilling to pursue Greene, he instead led his army to the North Carolina coast for re-supply. Once he arrived at Wilmington, he decided to march them north to join British forces holding tidewater Virginia, leaving North Carolina in May of 1781.

"I never saw such fighting since God made me. The Americans fought like demons."

READING for PLEASURE

SIX FRIGATES

By Ian W. Toll

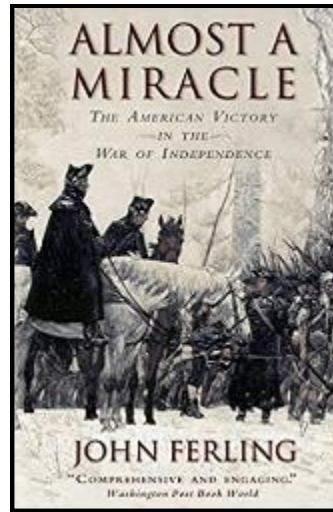

Before the ink was dry on the U.S. Constitution, the establishment of a permanent military became the most divisive issue facing the new government. The founders—particularly Jefferson, Madison, and Adams—debated fiercely. Would a standing army be the thin end of dictatorship? Would a navy protect from pirates or drain the treasury and provoke hostility? Britain alone had hundreds of powerful warships.

From the decision to build six heavy frigates, through the cliff-hanger campaign against Tripoli, to the war that shook the world in 1812, Ian W. Toll tells this grand tale with the political insight of Founding Brothers and the narrative flair of Patrick O'Brian.

ALMOST A MIRACLE

By John Ferling

In this gripping chronicle of America's struggle for independence, award-winning historian John Ferling transports readers to the grim realities of that war, capturing an eight-year conflict filled with heroism, suffering, cowardice, betrayal, and fierce dedication. As Ferling demonstrates, it was a war that America came much closer to losing than is now usually remembered. General George Washington put it best when he said that the American victory was "little short of a standing miracle."

Almost a Miracle offers an illuminating portrait of America's triumph, offering vivid descriptions of all the major engagements, from the first shots fired on Lexington Green to the surrender of General Cornwallis at Yorktown, revealing how these battles often hinged on intangibles such as leadership under fire, heroism, good fortune, blunders, tenacity, and surprise. Ferling paints sharp-eyed portraits of the key figures in the war, including General Washington and other American officers and civilian leaders. Some do not always measure up to their iconic reputations, including Washington himself. The book also examines the many faceless men who soldiered, often for years on end, braving untold dangers and enduring abounding miseries. The author explains why they served and sacrificed, and sees them as the forgotten heroes who won American independence.

SARAH HENDERSON TOMBSTONE REPAIRED

Thanks to Compatriots James Alderman and Bobby Gresham, the original tombstone for Sarah White Henderson stands tall and proud once again in Fort Worth’s historic Oakwood Cemetery. As you can see in the photo to the right, it lay badly broken on the ground when we installed the new memorial stone in late January.

James found the original base portion of the tombstone buried in the ground. He located the bottom piece in the ground and dug it out and found the original base as well. He cleaned all three pieces of the tombstone with DS2.

To begin the reassembly of the stone, James and Bobby set the bottom piece in place and applied an epoxy glue designed specifically for the repair of tombstones. They constructed a wooden frame to hold the pieces in place as shown in the photo at bottom left. They allowed this to set for 24 hours to cure. Then, the middle section was put in place and glued with epoxy glue. Again, this piece cured for 24 hours. Finally, the top piece was glued in place.

James then salvaged some old pieces of marble and/or granite from discarded tombstones and used a rasp to file the stone into fine particles. He ended up with three different colorations of stone, selected the one that most matched the original tombstone, and blew the fine stone onto a fresh coating of epoxy on all the joints to try to match the epoxy to the original stone.

Thank you, James and Bobby, for all your hard work. JOB WELL-DONE!
